

Yan Dong, M.Sc., Ph.D.

Dr. Yan Dong is an Associate Professor of Neuroscience at University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA. He received his Ph.D. from the Chicago Medical School with Drs. Francis White and Marina Wolf. He completed his postdoctoral training at Stanford University School of Medicine with Dr. Robert Malenka. He was an Assistant and then Associate Professor at Washington State University 2006 – 2012. He is currently an tenured Associate Professor at the Department of Neuroscience, University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Dong leads three NIH-sponsored research projects, aiming at cellular and circuit mechanisms underlying cocaine craving and relapse. He is a member of the Society for Neuroscience and an Alexander Humboldt fellow. Dr. Dong has authored ~50 research articles in the research field of drug addiction.