

Mark von Zastrow, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. von Zastrow is a Professor of Psychiatry and Cellular & Molecular Pharmacology at UCSF. He received his MD and PhD from Yale, completed residency training in Psychiatry at Stanford Medical Center and carried out postdoctoral research at Stanford University in the Department of Molecular & Cellular Physiology and Howard Hughes Medical Institute. He has been on the UCSF faculty since 1994 and studies the cellular biology of receptor signaling and drug action.