

Sarah Duffy, PhD, Associate Director for Economics Research, Deputy Chief, SRB, Division of Epidemiology, DESPR, NIDA

Dr. Duffy is principally responsible for NIDA's economics, opioid use disorder treatment services research, and treatment quality measurement and management portfolios. She is also a member of NIDA's Research Training Committee. Prior to joining NIDA, she was a senior research economist at the Office of Applied Studies (now Center for Behavioral Health Statistics and Quality) at SAMSHA where she used data from large national data collection projects, including the National Survey on Drug Use and Health (NSDUH) and Treatment Episode Data Set (TEDS), to conduct economic and health services research on substance abuse treatment and costs. Dr. Duffy has also worked for the Maryland Health Services Cost Review Commission and the U.S. Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality where she published several articles in the substance abuse treatment, health services research, and economics literatures. She received her Ph.D. in economics from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.
